

Past Photos

By Kyle

My body of photographic work seems to be governed by three themes- family, location/landscape, and product detail. I notice that I use a lot of cool colors, but I think that just came mostly from not white balancing. But, in post, I don't usually warm the temperature up too much. Maybe though, that is just a natural desire to keep as much of the original image as possible.

The family and product details were chosen themes by me and I will continue those type photos, but the landscape/location photos came from school assignments and/or work for hire video shoots. I wouldn't normally choose to photograph those on my own.
